The EGC Business School Network

The EGC network is a leading network of business schools in France. The Bachelor in Business is a 3-year post-secondary state-certified qualification. EGC Business Schools are supported by the French Chambers of Commerce and Industry (CCI). This program includes recognized teacher-researchers and professionals.

When recruiting students, EGC Business Schools select candidates whose profiles truly match the needs of companies.

Throughout their studies, students are individually coached to enable them to successfully build their career and life project to become creative and responsible managers. This Bachelor's degree is highly valued by recruiters for its professional and international vision. All our schools operate under the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS).

The EGC Bachelor degree

Our business school offers a 3-year degree course in Business Studies. Our aim is to develop versatile and operational professionals who can take on responsibilities in various areas. To achieve this goal, our students are in constant contact with the business world, primarily through several internships, including one of at least four months abroad. These internships allow students to practice and apply what they have learned. By the time they graduate, our students have already spent almost a year in the professional world.

The EGC Reunion Island Bachelor program guarantees rapid access to employment and successful integration into the business world. Our post-course placement rate reaches 90% within 6 months of graduation. EGC Business School students make rapid progress in marketing, sales techniques, sales management, purchasing, distribution, banking and international trade.

The course

The pedagogical objectives of our program converge on four key skills that will enable students to be fully prepared for the professional world. They all study marketing, economics, accounting, communication, import/export, international trade, and many other business-related components. The study of two languages is mandatory: English for all students, plus a choice of Spanish, German, or Chinese.

Every year we organize talks and conferences for our students with international organizations (University of South Africa, MCCI, Export Club...).

The internship abroad

All EGC Business School students participate in a study abroad experience. This experience takes the form of an internship in a foreign company, which is essential for students to gain experience in business management and organization in an international context. The international placement improves both business and language skills.

Each internship abroad is the result of a carefully designed individual project. While our students gain much from these internships, they also make a real contribution to the companies hosting them. For this reason, all internship projects abroad are reviewed and approved by the international academic advisor to ensure that they are appropriate for the student's language level and business skills. Our students have completed internships in large, well-known corporations as well as in small and medium-sized companies.

EGC students: self-starters

In addition to their formal internships, EGC students engage in a variety of real-world projects, such as conducting market research for local businesses, organizing events and participating in humanitarian activities. In the classroom they also participate in numerous group projects providing them with a comprehensive understanding of the challenges of teamwork.

Throughout the 3-year program, students are exposed to real-world business case studies to apply the knowledge, skills, and expertise they have acquired. These challenges undertaken by the students allow them to integrate practice and theory seamlessly.
